

EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK

Everything you need to know, in plain language

Billion Events Hospitality Services Private Limited
Bengaluru, Karnataka

This handbook is a plain-language summary. It is written so that you can find an answer in under a minute. The complete and binding rules are in the HR Policy Manual, Version 1.1, which is available from Human Resources and displayed in the staff area. Where this handbook and the Manual differ, the Manual applies. This handbook is also issued in Kannada and in Hindi — ask HR for the version you want.

Version 1.1 | Effective [insert date] | Issued by Human Resources

Welcome

You have joined a company that gets one attempt at every job it does.

A wedding happens once. A first birthday happens once. A company's annual conference is planned for a year and lasts a day. Our guests cannot come back next week and ask us to try again. That single fact explains almost everything in this handbook — why we brief before every event, why we check the food temperature, why we care what your shoes look like, and why we are unforgiving about money and about how you treat people.

Who we are

Billion Events Hospitality Services Private Limited is your employer. Everything you sign, everything you are paid, and every benefit you receive comes from this company. Inside it we run two businesses.

Veloria Grand	Banquets, weddings, celebrations, conventions and children's milestone events at our venues.	Service, kitchen, housekeeping, front office, event delivery, maintenance, security, venue sales
Billion Events	Corporate and B2B event business, hotel and venue partnerships, and the central functions that support both brands.	Corporate sales, key accounts, partnerships, marketing, finance, HR, administration

What we expect — the short version

- Show up ready. On time, Formals, groomed, at the briefing.
- Tell the truth. About attendance, about bills, about mistakes
- Protect the guest. Their safety, their privacy, their money and their day.
- Treat colleagues with respect. Every single one, at every level.
- Speak up. If something is unsafe, unfair or dishonest, say so. Section 11 tells you exactly who to tell.

What you can expect from us

- To be paid correctly and on time, every month, into your bank account.
- A roster published seven days in advance, and a weekly day off.
- Housekeeping - A duty meal on every shift, drinking water, a locker, and a clean place to change and rest.
- Transport home, paid by the company, if your shift ends after 11 p.m.
- Insurance and every other benefit the law provides as per the company policy.
- Training before you are held to a standard.

- A written answer to any grievance you raise.
- To never be shouted at, humiliated, or punished off the books by any manager, however senior.

What is in this handbook

1	Your first week	What happens on day one, what to bring, who to ask
2	Your working day	Hours, shifts, roster, attendance, breaks, uniform
3	Your leave	How much, how to apply, what needs a certificate
4	Your pay	When you are paid, what the deductions are, your payslip
5	Your benefits	Insurance, meals, transport, tips
6	Growing here	Probation, appraisal, training, applying for another role
7	Staying safe	Fire, first aid, kitchen safety, late shifts, reporting incidents
8	Respect at work	Harassment, what it is, how to complain, what happens next
9	Guests	Service standards, privacy, tips, complaints, lost property
10	The bright lines	The things that end employment. Read this one twice
11	If something is wrong	Grievances, whistleblowing, who to go to, in what order
12	When you leave	Notice, handover, settlement, your relieving letter
13	Questions people actually ask	32 real answers
14	Quick reference	Numbers, contacts, and where to find the full rule

01

Your first week

Bring these on day one

- Aadhaar and PAN (original and a copy of each)
- Proof of date of birth and your education certificates
- Relieving letter and last three salary slips from your previous job, if you had one
- Bank passbook or cancelled cheque, in your own name
- Your UAN (provident fund number), if you already have one
- Two passport-size photographs
- A medical fitness certificate, if you will be handling food

If something is missing, come anyway and tell HR. Do not delay your joining date.

What HR will do on day one

- Give you your appointment letter and take your signature on it
- Register you for insurance
- Create your attendance record and system logins
- Issue your assets and, if applicable, two sets of uniform and safety footwear (Housekeeping)
- Give you this handbook and the acknowledgement slip at the back to sign

Your first seven days — induction

You must complete all of this within your first week. It is not optional and it is paid time.

The company, our brands, how we make money	HR
Code of conduct and this handbook	HR
Respect at work — harassment policy and who to complain to	HR or a committee member
Fire exits, evacuation route, assembly point	Operations
First aid, and how to report an accident	Operations
Guest service standards	Your unit head
Food safety and hygiene (food handlers only)	Executive Chef
Your systems — attendance app, CRM, whatever your role uses	Your manager

Your 30-60-90

Your manager will write down what you are expected to achieve in your first thirty, sixty and ninety days, and review it with you at each point. If nobody has given you this in writing by the end of week one, ask for it. You cannot be marked down later against a target that was never set.

Your buddy

If you work at a venue, you will be given a buddy for your first month — a colleague whose job is to answer the small questions you feel silly asking. Use them.

02

Your working day

If you work in the office

Days	Monday to Saturday
Saturdays off	Second and fourth Saturday of every month
Timings	9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Lunch	1:30 to 2:15 p.m., staggered so the desk is never empty
Weekly off	Sunday
Grace for late arrival	15 minutes, up to three times a month

If you work at a venue

You work to a roster, not fixed hours. The three usual shifts are:

Morning	7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
General	10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.
Evening	3:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight

Shift timings can move to match an event. What cannot move:

- Your roster is published seven days ahead. It goes up in the staff area. If it changes after that, someone must tell you personally.
- You get one full day off every week. If you are asked to work your day off, you get a compensatory off within thirty days, and it must be authorised in advance.
- Never more than six days in a row without a weekly off.
- At least ten hours between the end of one shift and the start of the next.
- Nine hours a day, forty-eight hours a week is the legal maximum, not counting your break.
- A one-hour break after no more than five hours of work.

If your roster keeps changing at short notice

That is a problem with the roster, not with you. Raise it as a grievance under Section 11. Your unit head will be asked to account for it.

Marking attendance

- Punch in and out on the the Veloria Grand App, every shift.
- If the device fails, tell your manager the same day. They must fix the record within two days.
- Field staff record start and end of day on the app, and log every client visit.
- Never punch for someone else. Not as a favour, not for a friend, not once. It ends employment.

Late, leaving early, not turning up

- Three lates beyond the grace period in a month costs you one day of casual leave.
- Late more than six times in a quarter is misconduct, separately from the leave adjustment.
- Leaving before shift end needs your manager's permission, recorded.
- Cannot come in? Phone your manager before your shift starts, then apply on the app the same day.
- Eight days absent with no leave and no message and we will write to your home address. If you do not reply within seven days, we may treat you as having left.

Overtime

Overtime must be approved in writing, in advance, by your unit head. If it is approved, it is paid at twice your normal rate. Unapproved overtime is not paid.

- If you are staff — service, kitchen, housekeeping, front office, stores, maintenance, field — you are entitled to overtime pay. There is no grade of staff that is excluded from it.
- Only managers and supervisors are not paid overtime. They get a compensatory off instead. The list of designations counted as managerial or supervisory is in Schedule E of the Manual, and nothing outside that list can be treated as exempt.

Uniform and grooming, if you are guest-facing

- Full uniform, clean and pressed, name badge on the left, visible.
- Closed black non-slip shoes, polished. No sandals or slippers on the floor or in the kitchen.
- Nails short, clean, unpolished. No artificial nails if you handle food.
- Hair — men above the collar; women tied back. Clean shaven or a neat, declared beard.
- In the kitchen: head cover always on, and no jewellery at all, including your watch.
- No gum, paan, tobacco or supari on the premises, on or off shift.
- Two sets of uniform are issued free. It stays company property and comes back when you leave.

What we provide on shift

A duty meal, drinking water, a locker for your belongings, a seating and rest area out of guest view, and clean separate washrooms.

03

Your leave

The leave year runs 1 January to 31 December. If you join partway through the year, your leave is worked out for the months you actually work (Prorate basis).

How much you get

Earned Leave	18 days a year	Builds up at 1.5 days per month. Available once you are confirmed. Up to 30 days carries into next year.
Sick Leave	6 days a year	From day one. Doctor's certificate if more than 2 days in a row.
Holidays	10 days a year	The 2026 list is in Section 14. Next year's list goes up in December.
Maternity Leave	26 weeks	For your first two children. Full details in Section 13.
Paternity Leave	5 days	Confirmed employees, within 30 days of the birth.
Bereavement Leave	3 days	On the death of a spouse, child, parent or sibling.
Marriage Leave	5 days	Once, during your whole time with us. Give 15 days' notice.
Compensatory Off	1 day	For each approved day worked on a holiday or your weekly off. Use it within 30 days or it lapses.

How to apply

- Apply on the Veloria Grand App. A WhatsApp message to your manager is not an application and is not a record.
- For 3 to 7 days off, apply seven days ahead. For more than 7 days, apply fifteen days ahead.
- Sick and cannot apply first? Phone your manager before your shift, then apply the same day.
- Do not book a ticket or make a commitment until the leave shows as approved on the app.

Who approves it

Up to 2 days	Your manager with HR
3 to 7 days	Your manager and department head with HR
More than 7 days	Business unit head, with HR
More than 15 days, or unpaid leave	Managing Director with HR

The busy periods

We are a seasonal business. Earned leave is normally not approved during:

- The wedding season windows, which are announced every January;
- The five days before and two days after a large confirmed event;
- The last five working days of each quarter, if you are in sales or collections.

The full calendar goes up in January so you can plan weddings, travel and family commitments around it. If you had already asked for those dates before the calendar was published, say so — it will be considered sympathetically.

Things worth knowing

- Only earned leave can be encashed, only up to 30 days, and only when you leave the company. Casual, sick and comp-offs are never paid out.
- Leave cannot normally be used to shorten your notice period.
- If you do not come back when your leave ends, without an approved extension, it is treated as absence without leave.
- Working on a declared holiday earns you either a comp-off plus half a day's wages. Venues do open on holidays.

04

Your pay

When and how

- The salary month is the 1st to the last day of the month.
- Attendance is cut off on the 25th. Anything after that is adjusted next month.
- Salary reaches your bank account on or before the 7th of the following month.
- Bank transfer only. We do not pay salary in cash, ever, for any reason.
- Your payslip is on the HR app every month. Check it.

What comes out of your salary

Only these, and nothing else:

Professional tax	A Karnataka state tax, deducted monthly.
Income tax (TDS)	Only if your income is taxable.
Advance or loan	Only if you took one and agreed the instalments.

Unpaid leave	Days you were absent without approved leave.
Notice shortfall	Only if you leave without serving your full notice.
No manager can fine you No manager may fine you, cut your wages, hold your salary, keep your certificates, or send you home without pay as a punishment. Only the disciplinary authority can impose any penalty, and only after the process in Section 11. A manager who does any of this is committing serious misconduct themselves. Report it. The same applies to breakage. You will not be asked to pay cash for a broken item, replace it yourself, or have it adjusted against your tips or next month's wages. Recovery can only follow a hearing, only where negligence is proved, and only within the limit the law allows.

Your salary is your business

Do not ask a colleague what they earn and do not tell them what you earn. If you handle payroll, you sign an extra confidentiality undertaking and a breach is a termination matter.

Increments

- The review year is April to March. Appraisals happen in April and May. Revisions take effect from 1 June.
- You are eligible if you are confirmed and have completed six months by 31 March.
- An increment is not automatic and is not guaranteed. It depends on your rating, your role, the market and how the business is doing.

If you need money urgently

You can ask for a salary advance of up to one month's net salary, once in a financial year, in a genuine emergency. It needs your unit head and the Managing Director to approve, and it is recovered over up to six months. It is not available if you are serving notice or facing disciplinary action.

If your pay looks wrong

Tell HR in writing within the same month. Do not wait three months. If we have underpaid you we will correct it in the next cycle; if we have overpaid you, it will be recovered, and you will be told before it is.

05

Your benefits

The statutory ones

Bonus	Statutory bonus if you are eligible, paid within eight months of the year end.	Nothing.
Group accident cover	Cover for death or permanent disability from an accident, 24 hours a day, on duty or off.	Nothing. It is on us.
Group medical	Hospitalisation cover for you, parents your spouse and up to two children. Every employee on the rolls gets this, whatever your grade or designation.	Add your family within 30 days of joining, or within 30 days of marriage or a birth. Late additions may be refused by the insurer.

The ones we add

- A duty meal on every shift.
- Transport home, paid by us, if your shift ends after 11 p.m.
- Door-to-door transport for every woman working past 8 p.m. — see Section 7.
- Uniform and safety shoes at our cost, replaced on fair wear and tear.
- Referral bonus if you refer someone and they complete six months with us.
- Fuel reimbursed at actuals against your fuel bill, within a monthly litre cap, if you use your own vehicle for work.
- Outstation meals reimbursed at actuals against bills, within a per-day ceiling. There is no fixed daily allowance — but you should never be out of pocket, and you can draw an advance from Finance before you travel.
- A Company mobile connection if your role needs sustained outbound calling. The Company does not reimburse personal mobile bills, so if your role needs a connection and you have not been given one, raise it with HR rather than pay for it yourself.
- Sponsored training and certification where it fits your role.

Tips — how they work at Veloria Grand

- Never ask a guest for a tip. Not directly, not by hinting.

- If a guest offers one, accept it politely and put the whole amount in the tip box at the duty manager’s desk on the same shift, with an entry in the register.
- The pool is shared out every month on a points system based on grade and days worked — including kitchen, housekeeping and stewarding, who never get tipped directly.
- The points system and the monthly statement are displayed in the staff area. You can inspect the register any time.
- Keeping a tip yourself, in cash or by digital transfer, is theft and you will be dismissed.

If a colleague dies in service
 HR will help the nominee with every an insurance claim, and salary and settlement dues are released to the nominee on priority — not on the normal settlement cycle. This is why the nomination forms matter. Fill them.

06

Growing here
 Probation

- Three months for operations and staff roles. Six months for supervisory, managerial and specialist roles.
- It can be extended once, by up to three months, and only with a written note telling you what is short and what standard is expected.
- During probation, either side can end the employment with fifteen days’ notice.
- Confirmation is not automatic. You stay on probation until you get it in writing.

Confirmation depends on your performance against the role, your attendance and punctuality, your conduct, and having finished your induction training and paperwork.

The appraisal cycle

April	Your goals for the year are set, in writing, with your manager
October	Mid-year check-in and course correction
April (next year)	You write your self-appraisal; your manager writes theirs; you discuss
May	Ratings moderated across the business
Late May	Your rating and revision are communicated to you, face to face
1 June	Revision takes effect

The ratings

5 — Outstanding	You exceeded everything and set the benchmark
4 — Exceeds	You exceeded most goals with nothing material short
3 — Meets	You did the job fully and reliably. This is a good rating.
2 — Partially meets	Something material fell short
1 — Below	The role was not delivered. A written improvement plan follows.
Two things you are entitled to You cannot be rated against a goal that was never written down. If your goals are not in the system, ask for them. If you disagree with your rating, you can write to HR within seven days. It goes to the business unit head, and you get a reasoned answer within twenty-one days.

If your performance is short
 You go on a written Performance Improvement Plan for thirty or sixty days. It must say exactly what is short, what standard is needed, what training and support you will get, and when it will be reviewed. Reviews happen at least every two weeks and are written down. If you succeed, the plan is closed in writing. A plan is a real attempt to fix things, not a formality before an exit — and a manager who puts you on one without having given you feedback first is failing their own job.
 Applying for another role here

- Vacancies go up internally for seven days before we look outside.
- You can apply if you have done twelve months in your current role and are not on an improvement plan. Tell your current manager you are applying.
- Your manager cannot block you. If they will not release you, they have to justify it to HR in writing with a date by which they will.

Training you must do every year

Respect at work / harassment awareness	Every year
Food safety and hygiene (food handlers)	Every year, with a medical check
Guest service and complaint handling	Twice a year
Data protection and confidentiality	Every year
Fire drill and evacuation (venues)	Every quarter
First aid (for nominated responders)	Every year

07

Staying safe

We are responsible for giving you a safe workplace. You are responsible for working safely. Safety instructions are not suggestions. Know these four things about your workplace (Properties)

- Where the nearest fire exit is.
- Where the nearest fire extinguisher is.
- Where the first aid box is.
- Where the assembly point is if the building is evacuated.

If you cannot answer all four right now, ask your supervisor today.

General rules

- Wear the protective equipment you are given — non-slip shoes, gloves, apron, hand protection for hot surfaces. Refusing to wear it is misconduct.
- Fire exits, corridors, staircases and electrical panels stay clear. Nothing is stored in an exit route, not even for an hour during a setup.
- Wet floor gets a sign and gets cleaned immediately.
- Do not operate any machine, equipment or vehicle you have not been trained and authorised to use.
- Electrical work, gas work and work at height is done only by a qualified person with the unit head's authorisation.
- If a stage, rigging or décor structure looks overloaded, stop and escalate. Do not decide it yourself.

If you work with food

- You need a current medical fitness certificate, renewed every year.
- Report fever, cough, cold, loose motions, vomiting, jaundice, a boil, a skin infection or an open cut immediately. You will be moved off food or sent on paid sick leave. You will not lose money for telling us. Hiding it is serious misconduct.
- Wash your hands at the designated station on entry, after every break, after touching your face or hair, after raw material, and after the washroom.
- Keep raw and cooked separate at every stage — separate boards, knives and storage, colour coded.
- Head cover always on. No jewellery in the kitchen at all, including your watch.
- Log the fridge, hot-holding and cooking temperatures when you are supposed to, and sign it.
- Never serve food past its holding time. Never re-serve food that has been out to guests.

Two things that protect you

Never write down a temperature or a check you did not actually do. It is a dismissal offence — and so is a supervisor telling you to do it.

If anyone tells you to serve food that is unsafe or past its time, refuse. Report it to the Executive Chef and the unit head. Nothing will happen to you for refusing. Something will happen to them.

If you are a woman working past 8 p.m.

Every one of these is compulsory. No manager can waive any of them, and no manager may pressure you to make your own way home to save cost.

- Your written consent — which you can withdraw at any time, with no effect on your job or your appraisal.
- Door-to-door transport both ways, paid by the company, with a driver whose background has been checked and recorded.
- A security guard in the vehicle if you are the only passenger, and you are not the last drop if it can be avoided.
- You are never left alone anywhere on the premises. Minimum two women, or a woman with an authorised woman supervisor.
- Proper lighting in work areas, corridors, washrooms, parking and approach paths.
- A separate, clean, lockable washroom and rest area.
- The driver's name, number and vehicle number given to you before the shift and logged with security.
- A confirmation call from security once you reach home.

If any of this is missing, do not travel. Tell HR. The manager who rostered you is the one at fault.

Reporting an accident or an incident

Report every accident, injury, near miss, fire, guest injury, food complaint, theft, argument or damage — immediately to your manager, and it goes in the incident register within twenty-four hours. It does not matter how small it was or whether anything was actually lost.

Hiding an incident is worse than the incident

Almost nobody is dismissed for causing an accident. People are dismissed for hiding one. Report it and you are protected. Conceal it and you are not.

Security and the premises

- Everyone, including employees, goes through the security check. A woman's belongings are checked only by a woman security staff member.
- Use the staff gate. Wear your ID on the premises.
- Nothing leaves the premises without a signed gate pass. Nothing.
- Do not bring family or friends onto the premises or into an event without the unit head's written permission.
- CCTV covers all areas except washrooms, changing rooms and rest areas.

Alcohol and substances

Do not come to work under the influence. Do not drink on the premises at any time — not after your shift, not at a staff gathering, not from an opened guest bottle. If there is reasonable suspicion, you may be asked to be examined by a doctor; refusing is treated as an admission.

Respect at work

You have the right to work here without being harassed, humiliated or made unsafe by anybody — including anybody senior to you. That is not a value statement. It is enforceable, and people have lost their jobs over it.

What harassment looks like

Sexual harassment includes any of these when they are unwelcome:

- Physical contact or advances of any kind;
- Asking for or demanding sexual favours;
- Sexual remarks, jokes, or repeated comments about your body or appearance;
- Showing you pornography or explicit material;
- Staring, gestures, following you, stalking, or unwanted calls, messages or social media contact;
- Passing around your photograph or phone number for a sexual purpose.

It is also harassment if any of the above comes with a hint about your job — a promise of favourable treatment, a threat about your shift, your rating or your continuation, or behaviour that makes your work environment hostile or offensive.

Where the policy applies

Everywhere: the venue, the office, a client or partner site, an off-site event, company transport, a team dinner, and on calls, WhatsApp, email and social media where you know each other through work.

Who to complain to

The Internal Committee. Their names, mobile numbers and email are in the staff area, and in Section 14 of this handbook. The committee has a woman as its head, at least half women members, and one member from outside the company.

How it works

- Complain in writing to any committee member, or to the dedicated email, within three months of the incident. They can extend that by three more months if there was a reason you could not come earlier.
- If writing it is hard, any committee member must help you write it.
- A relative, friend or colleague can complain for you with your written consent.
- The respondent gets a copy of the complaint within seven working days. Both sides get to be heard and to bring witnesses.
- No lawyers appear before the committee.
- The enquiry finishes within ninety days.
- While it is going on, the committee can move either person, give you up to three months' leave, or stop the respondent from having any say over your work.

Four things you should know

- It stays confidential. Names, the complaint, the proceedings, the outcome. Anyone who leaks it commits serious misconduct and can be penalised under the law.
- Nobody can retaliate. Not in your appraisal, your roster, your transfer, your increment or your job. Retaliation is dealt with separately and just as seriously.
- If you cannot prove it, nothing happens to you. Only a complaint the committee finds was deliberately false and malicious can attract action. Not being able to prove something is not the same thing at all.
- A manager cannot handle it themselves. If you tell a manager, they must pass it to the committee the same day. A manager who tries to settle it quietly or talk you out of it commits serious misconduct.

The wider rule

The company protects you against more than sexual harassment. Abusive language, shouting, physical intimidation, casteist or communal remarks, and comments on your religion, region, disability, gender or marital status are all prohibited, and being senior is not a licence for any of it. These go through the grievance route in Section 11.

09

Guests

The service basics

- Greet a guest within ten seconds of eye contact, standing, with the right greeting for the time of day.
- Learn the host and family names from the event brief and use them.
- Never say a flat no. Acknowledge, offer what you can, escalate to the duty manager if it is above your authority.
- Never discuss with a guest what anything costs, what their contract says, what discount someone else got, or any internal problem.
- Never argue with a guest. Never argue with a colleague where a guest can see or hear it.
- Any complaint, however small, goes to the duty manager immediately and gets logged. Settling it quietly yourself, or hiding it, is misconduct.

Guest privacy — this one is strict

- No photographs or video of any private function on your personal phone. Not of the décor, not of the food, not of an empty hall.
- Nothing about a guest or their event on your personal social media or in any WhatsApp group.
- Never give a guest's phone number or details to a decorator, photographer, planner or any other vendor. Not once, not as a favour.
- Do not approach a guest for personal contact, a social media follow, or private work after the event — and do not accept it if they approach you.
- If a celebrity or public figure attends, even the fact that they were there is confidential.

→ Full rule: Manual Annexure I §1.4.2

Something a guest left behind

Hand it to the duty manager immediately. It goes in the lost and found register with a description, the time, where you found it and your name, and into the locked cupboard. Do not keep it, do not use it, do not decide it is worthless. Not depositing something you found is treated as theft.

If something of a guest's is damaged

Report it to the duty manager at once. They tell the guest, record it and start the insurance claim. Do not offer to pay, do not admit fault on the company's behalf, do not try to settle it privately.

Serving alcohol

- Only where there is a valid licence for that date and premises, and only within permitted hours.
- If a guest looks under age, ask for photo ID. If they cannot produce it, refuse. The duty manager will back you — always.
- Do not serve someone who is visibly drunk. Tell the duty manager, who will arrange water, food and transport.
- Stock is reconciled at the end of every function and signed off. Taking any alcohol off the premises, in any container, is theft.

Children's events

A lot of our business is children's milestones. Children get into kitchens, service corridors, staircases, water features and electrical points. Physically block those routes before guests arrive, and somebody must be assigned to the play area for the whole event.

The bright lines

These are the things that end employment here. For most of them there is no warning and no second chance, and some of them will also bring a police complaint. This page exists so that nobody can say they did not know.

Money

- Taking any guest payment into your own bank account, UPI, payment app, card machine, or in cash without a company receipt.
- Sharing your personal payment link or QR code with a guest, for any reason.
- Providing any event, extra hour, extra cover, extra service or extra item without billing it.
- Giving a discount, waiver, freebie or extension beyond the authority you have in writing.
- Changing, cancelling, voiding or deleting a bill, booking or system entry without the recorded approval.
- Keeping a guest's tip instead of putting it in the pool.
- Not depositing cash you received with the cashier or duty manager on the same shift.
- Theft or pilferage of anything — company property, guest property, a colleague's property, food, liquor, linen, décor.

Commissions and side business

- Taking a commission, kickback, cut or gift of value from a decorator, photographer, videographer, caterer, DJ, mehendi artist, transport provider, hotel, contractor or any supplier.
- Recommending a supplier to a guest who is not on our approved panel.
- Sending an enquiry or a booking to another venue, planner or agency — or to yourself.
- Running your own event or banquet business on the side.

Information

- Copying, exporting, photographing or forwarding the client database, enquiry list, rate card, cost sheet or partner commercial terms to a personal account or device.
- Keeping your own client list on your phone or in a notebook instead of in the CRM.
- Posting a guest, an event, a colleague or a company matter on social media.

Records

- Faking any record — attendance, a bill, stock, a temperature log, a cleaning check, food sample retention, a sales report, an expense claim, a certificate or a medical note.
- Punching attendance for another person.
- Concealing an accident, injury, guest complaint, breakage, theft or food safety problem.

People

- Sexual harassment.
- Discrimination, or casteist or communal conduct.
- Assault, fighting, or threatening anybody.
- Abusive or humiliating treatment of a colleague.
- Retaliating against someone who raised a grievance or gave evidence.

If you are a manager, these are yours too

- Fining, docking wages, holding salary, keeping documents, or sending someone home without pay as a punishment.
- Rostering a woman on a late shift without every safeguard in Section 7 in place.
- Suppressing a harassment complaint, or trying to settle it informally.
- Telling anyone to falsify a log, serve unsafe food, or exceed the hall capacity.

Safety

- Blocking a fire exit.
- Exceeding the notified capacity of a hall, whatever the guest says.
- Serving alcohol to a minor, to a visibly drunk guest, or outside licensed hours.
- Coming to work under the influence, or drinking on the premises.

11

If something is wrong
There are three different routes depending on what it is. Use the right one and you will get an answer.

Your own job — pay, roster, leave, safety, how a manager treated you	Grievance route, below	Manual 22
Sexual harassment	Internal Committee — directly	Manual 5
Theft, fraud, a kickback, an unbilled event, a faked record, a safety cover-up	Whistleblower route, below	Manual 24

The grievance route

1	Your manager, informally	3 working days
2	HR, in writing	Acknowledged in 2 days, resolved in 10
3	Business unit head	15 working days
4	Managing Director — final	21 working days
You never have to complain to the person you are complaining about

If your grievance is about your own manager, or if you are worried about what will happen to you, skip step 1 and go straight to HR or to the Managing Director. That is expressly allowed.

What you are entitled to

- Every grievance is recorded, acknowledged and answered in writing. Silence is not an acceptable response from anybody.
- You can bring a colleague of your choice to any meeting.
- It stays as confidential as investigating it allows.
- Nobody can disadvantage you for raising it honestly. Retaliation is dealt with separately and seriously.

The whistleblower route

If you know about theft, fraud, off-book cash, a kickback, an unbilled event, a faked record, a safety or food safety cover-up, harassment, or any breach of the law or this handbook by anyone — however senior — report it.

- Write to the Head of HR, or straight to the Managing Director, or use the dedicated ethics email in Section 14.
- You can report anonymously, though it is harder for us to investigate if we cannot come back to you.
- Your identity is kept confidential as far as the law allows.
- Nothing bad happens to you for reporting honestly — even if it turns out you were wrong.
- The Managing Director is told about every single report received.

If you are the one accused of something

You are entitled to a fair process. That means: a written notice telling you exactly what you are accused of and on what evidence; a copy of the documents; at least forty-eight hours to reply in writing; and if it goes to an enquiry, the right to be present, see the evidence, question witnesses, bring your own, and be helped by a colleague of your choice. You can appeal to the Managing Director within seven days of any decision.

- No penalty without a written allegation and a chance to answer it.
- Suspension during an enquiry is not a punishment and does not mean you are guilty. You are paid a subsistence allowance.
- The maximum suspension as an actual punishment is eight days.

When you leave

Notice period

On probation or a trainee	15 days	15 days
Staff, associate, executive	30 days	30 days
Supervisor, senior executive, assistant manager	30 days	30 days
Manager or senior manager	60 days	60 days
Department head, business unit head and above	90 days	90 days

- Resign in writing to your manager with a copy to HR. A WhatsApp message is not a resignation.
- Notice starts the day your written resignation is received.
- The company may let you buy out part of your notice, or waive it — but neither is your right.
- Leave is not normally approved during notice, and your leave balance does not shorten your notice unless we agree in writing.
- Once accepted, a resignation can only be withdrawn with written consent, and only before someone else has been offered your job.

The exit process

- Write a handover note — your responsibilities, what is pending, guest and client commitments, what files and assets you hold. Your manager signs it.
- Return everything: visiting card, laptop, SIM, keys, access cards. It is checked against the asset register.
- Get clearance from Finance, IT, Operations and HR.
- Exit interview with HR. It is voluntary, it is confidential, and the themes go to the Managing Director. It is worth doing honestly.

Your money

Full and final settlement is paid within Thirty days of your last working day, once clearance is done. You get:

- Salary for the days you worked
- Encashment of your earned leave, up to 30 days

- Any approved expense claims

Less anything owed: notice shortfall, advances, unreturned assets, and any loss that was established through a proper process. You get a written computation.

Your documents

A relieving letter and experience certificate after clearance and settlement. We will answer reference requests factually. If you leave without serving notice, or are dismissed for misconduct, you get a service certificate stating the facts instead of a relieving letter.

What continues after you leave

Three things do not end when your employment does:

- Confidentiality — guest data, client data and commercial terms stay confidential indefinitely.
- Everything you created here belongs to the company — designs, documents, menus, decks, code, databases.
- For twelve months you may not use company information or relationships to solicit our guests, clients, hotel partners, vendors or employees.

This does not stop you working in hospitality or events, or earning your living in your trade. It stops the misuse of our information and relationships. Nothing more.

Questions people actually ask

Joining and probation

I have not received my relieving letter from my last job. Can I still join?

Yes. Join on your date and tell HR what is pending. Do not lose your start date over a document.

Do I get leave during probation?

Casual and sick leave, yes, from day one. Earned leave builds up from your first month but you can only use it once you are confirmed.

My probation ended two weeks ago and nobody has said anything. Am I confirmed?

No. Confirmation only happens in writing. Ask HR — you are entitled to know where you stand.

Hours and roster

My weekly off was cancelled the night before. Is that allowed?

Only in a genuine, documented emergency. And you must be given a comp-off within thirty days. If it keeps happening, raise it as a grievance — it is a rostering failure, not your problem to absorb.

I worked twelve hours on an event day. Is that legal?

The total spread-over including breaks can be up to twelve hours, and actual working time up to nine. Beyond that you should be on authorised overtime at Pro rate. If you are regularly past those limits, tell HR.

Can I swap shifts with a colleague?

Only with your supervisor's approval and only if it is recorded on the roster. A private arrangement between two people is not a swap — if one of you does not turn up, both are marked absent.

I am a supervisor. Why do I not get overtime?

Supervisory and managerial grades are not eligible for overtime pay under the Act. You get a compensatory off instead when you work a holiday or your weekly off.

Leave

I am getting married in four months. How much leave can I take?

Five days of marriage leave, once in your career here, plus earned leave if you have the balance and the dates are not in a declared peak period. Give fifteen days' notice. Apply early — before the peak calendar is finalised if you can.

Can I take casual leave and earned leave together for a longer break?

No. Casual leave cannot be joined to earned leave, and casual leave is capped at three days at a stretch.

I was sick for four days. What do I need?

A certificate from a registered doctor. Sick leave beyond two consecutive days always needs one.

My earned leave balance is 34 days. What happens to it?

Thirty days carry forward. The rest lapses on 31 December. If you are near the cap, plan to use it — it is only paid out when you leave.

I am pregnant. What do I get, and when do I tell you?

Twenty-six weeks of fully paid leave for your first two children, of which up to eight weeks can be before delivery, plus nursing breaks until the child is fifteen months. Tell HR as soon as you are comfortable — earlier means we can adjust your duties, your shift and anything unsafe. You cannot be dismissed or have your terms changed while on maternity leave, and the time counts for gratuity and your appraisal.

My father died. What do I do?

Tell your manager, go. Three days of paid bereavement leave, more if you need to travel outside Karnataka — ask your unit head. Paperwork afterwards.

I have a comp-off from two months ago. Can I still use it?

No. Comp-offs lapse after thirty days. Use them as soon as you earn them.

Pay and benefits

My salary is short this month and nobody can explain why.

Write to HR the same month. Do not let it run. Every deduction has to be one of the eight listed in Section 4 — if it is not on that list, it should not be there.

Can I get my salary in cash this month? My account has a problem.

No. We do not pay salary in cash under any circumstances. Fix the account and HR will process it.

I have an old PF account from a previous job. What do I do?

Give HR your UAN and it links automatically. If your Aadhaar or bank details are wrong at EPFO, you have to correct them yourself — HR will show you how, but cannot do it for you.

When can I claim gratuity?

After five years of continuous service, paid when you leave. If an employee dies or is permanently disabled, the five-year condition does not apply — which is why the nomination form matters.

I need money for a medical emergency.

Ask for a salary advance — up to one month's net salary, once a financial year, repaid over up to six months. It needs the Managing Director's approval. Also check whether the ESI or group medical cover applies before you borrow.

A guest gave me ₹2,000 directly. Can I keep it?

No. It goes in the tip box the same shift, with a register entry. You will get your share of the monthly pool. Keeping it is theft and you will be dismissed — this has happened.

Guests and vendors

A guest's decorator offered me ₹5,000 to recommend him to other guests.

Refuse, and report it to your unit head and HR today. Taking it is a dismissal offence. Reporting it protects you — and the report itself is protected under Section 11.

The guest wants to pay the extra hour in cash directly to me so it is simpler.

No. It goes on the bill, on the system, with a company receipt. There is no version of this that is allowed, however the guest frames it, however senior the person telling you to do it.

The host wants 400 chairs in a hall approved for 350.

Refuse and get the duty manager. The limit comes off the building's fire certificate, not from anyone's preference, and no manager at any level can change it. You will be backed. Saying yes is a dismissal offence.

A guest asked for my number to book me privately for their next event.

Politely decline and route them to sales. Taking private event work is a dismissal offence — and you would be competing with your own employer.

Can I post the mandap setup on my Instagram? No guests are in the photo.

No. Nothing from inside a private function goes on a personal account, guests visible or not. Send it to marketing and they will handle consent and posting.

Respect and grievances

My manager shouts at me in front of the team. Is that a harassment complaint?

It is not sexual harassment, but it is prohibited conduct and it is a grievance. Go to HR directly — you do not have to raise it with your manager first. Seniority is not a licence for it.

A colleague is sending me messages at night that make me uncomfortable. Is WhatsApp covered?

Yes. Digital contact between people connected through work is covered. Take it to the Internal Committee — the contacts are in Section 14 and on the notice board.

I told my supervisor about a harassment incident and he said he would sort it out quietly.

He is not allowed to. He had to pass it to the Internal Committee the same day. Go to the committee yourself, and mention that you told him — his handling of it is itself misconduct.

If I complain and cannot prove it, will I be in trouble?

No. Only a complaint the committee finds was deliberately false and malicious can attract action. Being unable to prove something is not the same thing, and it carries no consequence for you.

I want to report something serious but I am afraid of being identified.

Use the ethics email in Section 14. You can report anonymously. If you do give your name, it is kept confidential as far as the law allows, and retaliation against you is dealt with as serious misconduct in its own right.

Leaving

I have a new job starting in fifteen days but my notice is thirty.

Ask about a buy-out in writing, early. It is at the company's discretion, not your right. Leaving without serving notice means recovery from your settlement and a service certificate instead of a relieving letter.

Can I use my leave balance to cover my notice period?

Not unless the company agrees in writing. Assume the answer is no and plan for it.

When will I get my final settlement?

Within Thirty days of your last working day, provided your clearance is complete. Return the assets promptly — that is usually what delays it.

- I have received the Employee Handbook, Version 1.1.
- I have read it, or it has been read and explained to me in a language I understand, and I have been able to ask questions.
- I understand that the HR Policy Manual is the complete and binding version, that it is available to me from Human Resources, and that where the two differ the Manual applies.
- I have read Section 10, The bright lines, and I understand that those acts will end my employment — in particular taking any guest payment outside the company’s system, taking a commission from any vendor, and falsifying any record.
- I know who the Internal Committee members are and how to make a complaint about harassment.
- I know the four safety facts about my workplace in Section 7 — fire exit, extinguisher, first aid box and assembly point.
- I understand that the company may update this handbook and that changes notified to me will apply.
